"Not everyone is going to write a book about their lives and sell it on bookshelves. But we all write a story through our lives that will be read by those around us. And through that, we have an opportunity to have an impact by touching just one other person. And that, by extension, will change the world." (P. 20, Kindle Version)

- How can you impact someone by simply living your life?
- How can everyday moments have equal or greater impact than bucket list moments?
- What impact would you personally like to make from someone reading your life?

Chapter 1 | Creating Value. When someone feels the true worth of who they are because you stopped what you were doing and made life about them, you have hit on an essential component of Moment Making (P. 26, Kindle Version). Read Matthew 20:28.

Chapter 2 | Creating Hope. Carlos shares a story of how he took the time to share love to a transgendered person named Nicole. Nicole's response was, "No one has told me I'm worth anything, ever." Read John 8:3-11.

Chapter 3 | Creating Joy. Whitaker states that "Moments are the exclamation points to the sentences" and "For an exclamation point alone is nothing without the sentence that goes before it." Share a personal exclamation point that wouldn't have happened without your sentence.

Chapter 4 | Creating Perspective. The author says, "There is a time for big. There is a time for little. There is a time for in-between." Share a personal example of how doing something small created a big moment.

Chapter 5 | Creating Thankfulness. Carlos shares a inspiring story of taking the time to thank a military platoon who had just returned from serving eighteen months in Afghanistan. This is what happened as he was leaving: As I was walking to the elevator, Rachel came running up to me. "No one remembers us. We feel forgotten. Thank you for not forgetting us. Thanks for sitting with us. We are you. You are us. Thank you." (P. 60, Kindle version) Read John 10:27 and 1 Corinthians 2:10.
